

2024 MIT Quality of Life Survey

About the Survey

- The survey is sponsored by the Council on Family and Work, an Institute Committee appointed by the President, whose role is to advise the administration on family and work-related issues.
- Every two years, MIT administers an Institute-wide Quality of Life Survey to better understand the lives of staff, faculty, postdoctoral scholars, and students.

About the Survey (cont'd)

- This year's survey launched February 15, 2024, and closed March 19.
- For many metrics, we have a time trend.
  - Faculty/Staff: 2012; 2016; 2020; 2022; 2024
  - Students: 2013; 2017; 2020; 2022; 2024
- Timing of survey an important consideration.

Response Rates

2024 overall response rate, including students: 43%

- Main campus employees: 50%
- Main campus by role:

Admin 67%

Research 41%

Faculty 48%

Service 22%

Graduate 32%

Support 62%

Instructional 29%

Undergraduate 38%

Postdoc 36%

Survey Topics

The Quality of Life Survey provides information that can inform decision-making around important issues such as:

- Satisfaction
- Workload/Work Arrangements
- Stress/Health/Wellness
- Climate/Atmosphere
- Current Issues on Campus

Confidentiality

- The survey is confidential, and responses must be shared in a way that does not identify individual respondents.

Sharing Survey Results

We share results from Quality of Life surveys in various ways:

1. Tableau report showing results for select areas and units (based on permissions) by location, year, role, gender, and race/ethnicity.
  - Public version does not allow for area/unit breakouts.
2. Tableau report showing unit results relative to other units at MIT (masked) using boxplots.
  - Focuses on a smaller set of single survey questions and survey scales.
3. Ad-hoc reports.
